

presents

Sustainable inland fisheries: Why are they so valuable?

with Doug Beard

Chief, National Climate Change and Wildlife Science Center (NCCWSC), USGS

Date: Tuesday, July 11

Time: 10 am

Location: HIG 210

Abstract: Inland fisheries are a key component of food security for many people in developing countries, yet often these fisheries are not a part of the discussion on use in water ways. Beard will discuss the context of inland fisheries around the globe and show their value to food security and economic livelihoods.

